

City of Goodlettsville News Release

Tim Ellis, City Manager

Public Information Office
105 South Main St.
Goodlettsville, TN 37075
(615) 851-3211

For Immediate Release
Monday, January 26, 2012

Contact: Mary Laine Scott
(615) 851-3211

Goodlettsville Police Department Conducts Its Annual Citizens Police Academy

(Goodlettsville, TN) – Each year the Goodlettsville Police Department conducts the Citizens Police Academy to provide information on how the police department functions on a day-to-day basis. Through a series of classes, citizens learn about policies and procedures and how police officers combat crime in the community. Topics to be covered include domestic violence, crime prevention, drug enforcement, personal safety, neighborhood watch, and more. The Police Department's goal for the class is to develop understanding, build better community cooperation, and promote goodwill.

Those interested in attending the Citizens Police Academy can download an application form at www.cityofgoodlettsville.org. Applicants must be at least 21 years of age and be committed to attend once-a-week classes on Tuesday nights from 6:00 to 9:00pm for a period of nine weeks from March 6 to May 1, 2012. Classes are held at the Goodlettsville Police Department. Please note, this is not a class to recruit citizens to become police officers. Background checks will be run on all applicants. There is no fee to participate in the Citizens Police Academy. Class space is limited.

###